SHEPHERD FIGHT FOR BONDS TAKEN TO SUPREME COURT

His Arraignment to Answer Murder Charge Delayed a Week

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, April 9.—Arraignment of William D. Shepherd, charged with the murder of William Nelson McClintock, was continued today for one week while the accused lawyers continue their battle for bail before the Illinois Supreme Court.

Shepherd's last chance for release from jail pending trial comes up today before the Illinois Supreme Court in Springfield.

Decision by the court on a motion for writ of habeas corpus, filed by his counsel yesterday for presentation to the court today, is expected within a few days. William S. Stewart, Shepherd's counsel, said he expected the writ would be made returnable as soon as possible.

With the bail matter now in the hands of the highest state court, the fourth effort of the defense to get Shepherd out of jail, Chief Justice Hopkins announced he would defer arraignment until April 18.

The report of the coroner's chemist on the chemical analysis of the vital organs of young McClintock's mother, Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock and of Dr. Oscar Olson, a friend of the McClintock family, may not be completed until Saturday it was indicated today.

THIRD ASSAULT ON GIRL UNDER SCRUTINY NOW Rock Falls Trio May Be Accused of Another Offense

Additional reports of the taking of young women from their escorts by the three Rock Falls youths who are being held at the county jail on statutory charges, are coming to the attention of State's Attorney Mark C. Keller and local officials. Investigations are being made in each case and the outcome of these will be presented to the April grand jury next Tuesday.

None of the trio has been able to furnish bonds and they are still in custody. The young woman who was forcibly taken away from her escort on the evening of March 27, has related her story, and this case was under investigation yesterday.

On that occasion, Kewer and Decker, who confessed to their complicity on that evening, are alleged to have threatened the young woman's escort by telling him that they would "knock his block off" at the same time flourishing a pair of pliers. In this case the cries of the young woman frightened her captors and she was kept out all night and then brought back to Dixon.

In her relation of the purported facts, she claims that after being placed in a Dodge coach, Decker and Kewer held her in the seat for some distance in order that she would not know in which direction she was being taken. According to her story, she was taken to a school house but succeeded in resisting an assault, although her clothes were torn.

Chief Van Bibber this morning received a third report of an identical case, which occurred north of the city and this was being investigated today.

Mrs. Stillman Spurned

By Associated Press Leased Wire

The paper declared that the 14-year-old son of the Stillmans, Alexander, brought one plea, which was expressed in a telegram received by Mrs. Stillman from her husband's secretary in New York.

Mrs. Stillman, who departed last night for Arizona, was declared to have spurned the reported advances. She said that after a vacation in Arizona, she planned to go to her estate in Quebec, where she intended to embark on a writing career.

Scarcity of Blondes in England, Producers Say
By Associated Press Leased Wire
London, April 9.—Scarcity of blond chorus girls is divulged by London producers. The managers believe this is due to the bobbing and shingling vogue, which in their opinion has caused abandonment of the use of hair dyes.

A number of druggists have explained that the sale of peroxide has fallen off alarmingly.

Since the war many girls have gone to for office work and the managers contend that the tea shops also have hired many of their possible candidates for the chorus.

This picture showing Dorothy Ellingson, her father, and her brother at the girl's sanity hearing in San Francisco, was telephoned from San Francisco by NEA Service and mailed from Cleveland. It is the first picture to be handled commercially by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, which is the first organization in the world to wire photographs on a commercial basis.

REPRIEVE FOR CONVICTED MURDERER SOUGHT BY COUNSEL

Governor to be Asked to Give Opportunity to Carry Case up

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Springfield, Ill., April 9.—L. P. Whelan, of counsel for Russell Scott, former Toronto, Ont., promoter, sentenced to hang April 17, called at the executive offices here today to petition for a reprieve for Scott, but found that Governor Small had left and would not be back until next Tuesday. He was referred to the division of pardons and paroles.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, April 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—Governor Small was to be asked today to reprieve Russell Scott, former Toronto, Ontario, promoter, sentenced to hang April 17, but found that Charles P. R. MacAulay, counsel for Scott, announced today.

Scott, found guilty by a jury of the murder of Joseph Maurer, a drug clerk slain a year ago in a supposed holdup, will appear at the Illinois supreme court, but because more time is needed to prepare the papers, it was decided to appeal direct to the Governor in Springfield for a stay.

To file papers Tuesday.

It had been planned, Attorney MacAulay said, to file the appeal papers at the high court tomorrow, but the supreme court will adjourn today until Tuesday, which would allow only three days before the date fixed for the execution.

Counsel sent L. P. Whelan, another lawyer interested in the case to Springfield last night to apply personally to the Governor today for a reprieve.

In the meantime, Attorney MacAulay arranged to confer with State's Attorney Crowe. The bill of exceptions to be filed with a motion before the supreme court for leave to file a writ of error and supersedeas, was to be signed today by Judge Lynch, trial judge, who sentenced Scott.

Advices from Springfield that Governor Small had left the capitol and would not return until Tuesday made no change in the plans of Scott's counsel. Attorney MacAulay said the petition for a reprieve probably would go to the Governor Tuesday and an effort would be made to take the case into the supreme court that day.

Report of Ruth's Death on Train Proves Untrue

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, April 9.—Reports that George Herman (Babe) Ruth, baseball's premier batsman had died en route from Asheville, N. C., to New York were dispelled early today by the arrival here of the train on which he is traveling.

Those in charge of the train said that Ruth, who collapsed in Asheville, Tuesday, still was ill, but that his condition so far as they knew, was not serious.

Reports that the home run king had died en route to Washington started in the early morning hours when his train was speeding through southwestern Virginia. Originating apparently in Canada, it spread with almost incredible rapidity.

Community High Schools Solved Many Situations

Q. What is the difference between a township and community high school?

A. There is no difference between the township and community high school organization, except the boundary lines. The township high school territory lies wholly within one township, or, in some cases, is composed of parts of two townships, whereas, the community high school district may be parts of three or more townships that lie within a few miles of a community center, unless the community center is near the center of the township the community high school is preferable, or more logical than a township high school. The organization, which is the board of education in charge of either township or community high school, has five members elected from the voters in each case.

Q. Why is it necessary to change the type of organization for this proposed high school?

A. Because high school enrollment has increased tremendously in the last few years. In the state of Illinois, and in the United States as a whole, the high school enrollment has doubled during the preceding decade, which means that there are four times as many high school students as there were twenty years ago. These students come from the rural districts as well as the town districts.

Q. How many other communities meet the demands for high school education?

A. A majority of the communities in the state of Illinois have met it just at it is proposed that Dixon meet it, namely, by organizing a community or township high school. There are, in the state of Illinois, 773 high schools 493 of which have become either township or community organizations. The township high school in the state has been organized in 1867. Streator and Ottawa followed in 1875 and 1876. Pontiac and Sterling organized township high schools in 1892 and 1893. LaSalle in 1897. Until 1909 there were comparatively few township high schools. Each year more and more communities organized township or community high schools until in 1920 when there were 169 community high schools organized. All sizes of communities sought this method of solution. Of the 234 in the state having an enrollment of more than 100 students 218 of them are either township or community. Of the 479 high schools having an enrollment of less than 100 there are 277 either township or community.

The number of students in the high schools came from a very small number to a large number of 3000 and over. If we take a group of the high schools whose enrollment is within the range of 300 to 600, that is to make it comparable with Dixon, whose enrollment is 500, we find that there are 65 high schools and of this number 59 are either township or community.

Dorothy's Temper Was Shown During Hearing

By Associated Press Leased Wire
San Francisco, April 9.—The uncontrolled temper of Dorothy Ellingson, that element which led to the girl shooting her mother to death, threatened to disrupt an orderly superior court insanity proceeding against the girl today.

In a flare up yesterday, the 17 year old girl disrupted the proceeding against her when she cut off the concluding arguments of her attorney with the remark: "I could choke you." The attorney invited the wrath of his young client when he tried to support his insanity arguments for the girl.

The argument between Miss Ellingson and her attorney as to her sanity will be transferred to a jury today for a decision.

Sheriff E. C. Riley transacted business in Rockford yesterday.

DIXON BUSINESS MAN QUILTS AFTER 25 YEARS

G. J. Reed, Pioneer, to Seek Ease and Rest After Busy Life

After a quarter of a century in business for himself, George J. Reed, furniture dealer at 112 E. First street, having reached the age of 75 years, has decided to retire from active business life, and accordingly he is placing his entire stock on sale at greatly reduced prices, the sale to commence tomorrow.

Mr. Reed has seen much of Dixon's progress. He came here in 1855—seventy years ago—at the age of five years, his parents coming direct to Dixon from London, England. The seventy intervening years—with the exception of eleven—have been spent in this city by the venerable merchant, and he takes pride in recalling the progress of his efforts in this city.

He spent several years in the employ of Keyes & Chiverton in their photographic gallery and later was in the employ of Camp & Son, furniture dealers, before entering business on his own responsibility twenty five years ago.

Mr. Reed, who ranks with the pioneers of Dixon, is building a new home on Palmyra ave., and hopes to be able to spend the rest of his life in quiet and rest, in which wish all of his many friends join.

TAXI LICENSE ATTACKED; CAR OWNERS PROTEST

Conference Held Last Evening With City Commissioners

The annual tilt over the question of the exact right of the city of Dixon to exact a license for the operation of taxis, was the subject of a lengthy discussion at the city hall last evening. Owners of the city hall lines were present and is reported, assailed the city ordinance, declaring that a legal fight will be made to settle the question, which has come over every spring since the ordinance became effective.

It was pointed out that local automobile owners are using their cars in funerals and exacting charges, owners of the taxi lines maintaining that these cars should be required to pay the same license as exacted from individuals, who are alleged to have received compensation for driving their cars in funeral processions, were said to have been furnished the city authorities.

The owners of the taxi lines, by the provisions of the city ordinance, are required to take out their 1925 license the first of April and because of their failure to do so the conference of last evening was called.

Former Dixon Man is Elected by Poilotes

Fred "Fritz" Salzman, well known former Dixon young man and prominent business man of Polo, was elected to office Tuesday's balloting in that city. He was not a candidate for office, but his name was written in by voters and he received a heavy vote electing him to the office of consable of Polo township in Ogle county. TICE ANTI-BOVINE TUBERCULOSIS ACT ENCOUNTERS FIGHT

Floor Leader in House Asks Time to Study Proposed Measure

Springfield, Ill., April 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—Members of the General Assembly were prepared for a brief session today and hoped to complete their labors before noon in order to start early for their homes to spend the Easter holiday.

Representative R. G. Soderstrom, Streator, sponsor of the anti-bovine tuberculosis bill, announced that he would be brought up for a final vote in the House, April 21, but abandoned that date because only a small representation of downstate men is expected on that day because of elections which are scheduled in many districts.

Debate on the Durnip police bill and the Barr highway police bill began in the Senate today over the institution of advancing the measures to third reading.

Speakers Barr and Durnip both took the floor in support of their bills. Supporters of the Durnip bill said they would not consider the Barr bill unless several amendments are made. Representative Tice's anti-bovine tuberculosis bill received a temporary setback in the House when action was postponed one week at the request of Floor Leader Cutler of Lewistown, who asked more time in which to consider it.

Speaker Scholes suggested that the proper place to amend bills and argue their provisions was in committee and on second readings. When bills are on third reading, he said, members should have made up their minds how to vote and not delay progress of the assembly.

Cutler explained he had been busy maneuvering the administration's appropriation bills through the House against Tice's opposition that he had not had time to familiarize himself with the anti-bovine tuberculosis bill.

Fears Work Too Costly
His objection was based on the fact that the bill, if passed, may cost the state $3,000,000 to administer it during the next two years, while the federal appropriation is only $750,000. The present state appropriation is $1,000,000 for two years. Tice agreed to postpone consideration, saying Cutler was making it a personal referendum of which Mr. McKenzie was made chairman.

Two minor bills were passed by the House. They were Representative A. C. Arnold's bill appropriating $5000 for improvements to Lincoln's tomb and Representative Springer's bill appropriating $30,000 for the improvement of the University of Illinois in Cook county. A number of other bills were advanced on the calendar.

Amendments made in amendments made by the senate to a bill to pay for the publication of notices on the hard road bond issue and it was sent to the Governor for his approval.

Ohio Governor's Son
Fined: Under Probation
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Zanesville, O., April 9.—Hal Donahue, 19 year old son of Governor Donahue, today was fined $100 and costs by Probate Judge Graham on charge of contributing to the delinquency of Miss Lillian Vogel, 15 year old Zanesville girl, whom he drove to Columbus Sunday.

He was granted the custody of Sheriff Bradford until the fine was paid. He also was placed under control of the Muskingum County juvenile court until he becomes 21 years old.

Miss Vogel was placed under probation of the court for the next 12 months.

After sentence had been pronounced, Mrs. Donahue, who was in court with her son and the girl, paid the fine and costs.

Judge Graham said he was convinced there had been no improper conduct between the governor's son and Miss Vogel and the only reason he fined Hal was because he had led to him Tuesday when the judge questioned him about disappearance of Miss Vogel.

It is too bad that your father bought you the fine reader," Judge Graham continued. "I hope you will sell it to pay this fine. It is like you told me yesterday—you have too much sporting blood in your veins to own an automobile."

And your lashes keep drooping lower and lower.
And—your eyes gone to sleep, like a weary flower.
Ungrateful Baby Louise!

Menus for a Family

Tested by SISTER MARY.

Breakfast:
Oranges, cereal, thin cream, minced lamb on toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon:
Egg coquilles with spinach, graham bread and butter, lemon pudding, milk, coffee.

Dinner:
Hot pot of hodge podge, buttered carrots, prune and cheese salad, whole wheat bread, sponge cake pudding, milk, coffee.
No extra dishes need be prepared for junior members of the family if the menu is used as suggested.
The minced lamb on toast uses the "left-over" of a previous dinner and is suggested particularly for school children.

Lemon Pudding.
One lemon, 1 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1/4 teaspoon salt, graham crackers, four tablespoons powdered sugar.
Beat yolks and whites of eggs separately. Mix flour and part of milk to smooth paste. Add juice and grated rind of lemon. Add sugar and remaining milk. Pour this mixture onto the well-beaten yolks of eggs. Line the bottom and sides of a pie dish with graham crackers, pour in custard and bake in a slow oven until firm to the touch. Beat whites of egg until stiff and add powdered sugar. Continue beating until mixture is stiff enough to hold its shape. Spread over top of pudding and brown in a quick oven.

Egg Coquilles With Spinach.
One-half cup cooked spinach, 4 tablespoons cream, 4 eggs, salt and pepper, 4 tablespoons grated cheese.
The spinach should be chopped very fine and well seasoned with salt, pepper and butter. Butter four ramequins and put one tablespoon prepared spinach in each case. Add one tablespoon cream and on top put an egg. Put ramequins in a pan of hot water, cover with buttered paper and bake in a hot oven for eight minutes. When eggs are set sprinkle with salt and pepper and cheese and return to the oven to melt cheese. Remove buttered paper after sprinkling with cheese. Serve at once in ramequins.

Hot Pot of Hodge Podge.
Two pounds lean mutton cut from fore-quarter, 6 good-sized potatoes, 1 large onion, 1 cup canned or dried or fresh mushrooms broken in pieces, 2 tablespoons drippings, 1 cup boiling water, 2 teaspoons salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, minced parsley.
Trim fat from meat and cut in pieces for serving. Melt drippings in frying pan and add onion peeled and cut in thin slices. Saute for five minutes. Pare and slice potatoes and add to onion in frying pan. Cook five minutes and remove from fat to casserole or a tightly covered iron kettle. Brown meat quickly on both sides in fat in frying pan. Add to potatoes and onion in casserole. The meat and potatoes should be arranged in alternate layers in the casserole. Season each layer with salt and pepper. Pour in boiling water and cook slowly in the oven for two hours. Let cool and remove fat. Add mushrooms and reheat in a hot oven for 20 minutes. Sprinkle with parsley and serve.

Alcohol Removes Mud.
Mud stains may be removed from silk and flannel by sponging them with alcohol.

Sandpaper the Needle.
When the needle of the sewing machine becomes dull, stich for several minutes through a fine sandpaper.

Secret of Bright Floor.
The secret of a clean bright floor is to use only a little oil and never to apply the oil until the floor has been dusted with a dry mop.

In Washing Lace.
When washing delicate lace, never use starch. If a little stiffening is desirable, dissolve two lumps of sugar in a basin of water and rinse in that.

Wash Woodwork.
White furniture or woodwork that is not badly soiled should be washed with borax water instead of soap.

To Clean Raincoat.
To clean a raincoat, lay it on a table and scrub on both sides with soap and warm water, using a soft brush.

Save Bacon Rinds.
Bacon rinds should be saved for flavoring soups and spreading over the top of beans while baking.

Cane Chair Hint.
Rub soap and hot water on the top and bottom of cane chair seats that have begun to sag. It will shrink them so they will be firm as new.

Cleans Old Brass.
A paste of lemon juice and cream of tartar will clean old brasses very satisfactorily.

Aid Society Met With Mrs. Stanley

Thirty-eight members and friends of the Kingdom Mt. Union Society were charmingly entertained Wednesday, April 8th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Stanley, east of town.

The delicious basket dinner at noon was thoroughly enjoyed, the table decorated in keeping with the Easter season. Spring flowers, anemones, and blooming plants added their charm to the room.

Owing to the illness of the president, Mrs. Hamilton, the business meeting was conducted by the vice president, Mrs. Hill opening the meeting, and all joining in the singing of a hymn, followed by all repeating the Twenty-third Psalm. Roll call and other business was disposed of, after which the chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Hansen, announced the following program:

Reading—Dorothy Lilevan.
Guessing—Contest, pertaining to Trees, the prize being won by Mrs. David Heagy.

Reading—Marie Patterson.
Victrola Selections.
The three names drawn for the next entertainment committee were: Mesdames Edward Stanley, Pettinger and Patterson.

A new member, Mrs. William Berdel, was added to the society.
The next meeting will be held on two weeks, April 22nd, with Mrs. Charles Spangler, east of town on the Lincoln Highway.

After singing "Best Be the Tie that Binds," and repeating the Lord's prayer in unison, the guests left for their homes expressing their pleasure to the host and hostess in having spent a very happy day.

McCrea-Nichols—Ashton Wedding

A pretty home wedding occurred at 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William B. McCrea of Ashton when their daughter, Ethel, was united in marriage to Royce Nichols of May Township.

The wedding took place in the presence of about a dozen guests, the immediate relatives of both families, and was performed by Rev. William H. Evans, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The bride was neatly dressed in a gown of dark blue satin messaline. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Degner, Mrs. Degner being a sister of the groom.

LEOPARD'S SPOTS UNCHANGED.

The leopard's spots remain unchanged.

After viewing remains of their own party when the votes had been counted last fall, several democratic senators declared they had had enough of coalitions with LaFollette and his. They said they had learned a lesson from the public, that they would not longer interfere with administration of President Coolidge. They would let the majority party assume all responsibility for the government and would undertake to profit in the next election by mistakes of the republicans.

When the test came, the temptation was too great. The leopard arose and displayed all of his spots, as they were. Had the new senate not been called into extraordinary session, it might have maintained a measure of public esteem until December, which is quite a spell for a senate to remain in public favor.

The LaFollette-democratic group strained and rejected Warren, but it swallowed Sargent in the twinkling of an eye. Warren had a long record of public service and a creditable one. Sargent was and is unknown.

Does any one doubt that such experienced hunting dogs as Walsh and Reed could have found something to object to in the career of a lawyer 65 years of age. Did they diligently search the record of cases to determine on which side of the controversy Sargent has been?

They risked nothing more. The people were with Coolidge. The only objection to Warren was in the senate. The house of representatives of the senate of Michigan sent its vote of confidence in Warren. The republican organization of Custer county in Nebraska sent its message to Senator Norris that it was standing with Coolidge.

The Washington Post says that the net results of the senate's violation of an established tradition, which accorded to the president the privilege of choosing his own counselors, may be summed up as follows:

1. Enhancement of popular backing of Mr. Coolidge, as a consequence of the demonstration of his difficulties in dealing with a jealous and obdurate body, controlled by a coalition of partisanship, apostasy and recreancy.
2. Weakening of the senate as a whole in public esteem.
3. Loss of democratic opportunity, through realignment with the renegades, to regain the prestige insensibly sacrificed in the recent campaign.
4. Temporary, but ultimately fatal, resuscitation of Mr. LaFollette and his guerrillas.
5. The "advantage" to Mr. Warren, in the prophetic words of Lord Auckland to Martin Van Buren when rejected by the senate for minister to England, "the advantage to a public man to be the subject of an outrage."

GERMAN POLITICS.

It is questioned whether the German national election that elected nobody was a victory for the conservatives or the liberals.

A conservative won the highest vote, in the person of Dr. Jarres; but he represented the combined strength of two parties, the nationalist and the conservative bourgeois. The largest single party vote was the socialist vote cast for Otto Braun, and the three liberal parties together are credited with 20 percent more than the combined vote of the four conservative parties.

There is no telling which party or candidate will win in the second election, in which a mere plurality will suffice. If the socialists win, however, there will be no such alarm as a socialist victory would bring in this country. Germany has had a socialist government for several years, without doing anything very revolutionary. German socialism is apparently only a moderate pink, having little in common with bolshevism.

One of the most satisfactory results of this election to most Americans as well as most Germans, was the emphatic repudiation of General Ludendorff, reputed "brains" of the late German war, a militarist parading as a fascist. He polled only a couple of hundred thousand votes.

JEFFERSON'S DECALOGUE.

The anniversary of Thomas Jefferson's birth, April 2, recalls a work of that statesman and philosopher which is too little known. It is what is called "A Decalogue of Canons for Observation in Practical Life," some of which have been attributed to Franklin, and all of which are worth remembering. They are as follows:

1. Never put off till tomorrow you can do today.
2. Never trouble another for what you can do yourself.
3. Never spend your money before you have it.
4. Never buy what you do not want because it is cheap; it will be dear to you.
5. Pride costs more than hunger, thirst and cold.
6. We never report of having eaten too little.
7. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.
8. How much pain have cost us the evils which have never happened!
9. Take things always by their smooth handle.
10. When angry, count ten before you speak; if very angry, a hundred.

PROOF READERS FOR ARTISTS

May one timidly suggest the introduction of a proof reader in the "art" rooms of newspapers?

Its function would be limited, but important. It would consist in enforcing the correct spelling of one expression.

There are three classes of cartoonists, speaking proofreaders. One spells it, as the printers do, "all right." These are doubtless the products of a discipline little short of boiling oil.

The second class spell it "alright." They have evidently been told only a thousand times to put in the two "l's" but have not yet been successfully intimidated into inserting the space.

The third class, which includes all of them until they have had to do over drawings on this account at least a hundred times, and been discharged at least five times for it, frankly spell it "alright."

For be it from a mere contributor to be captious. This spelling may be "alright," or spelling may not be important.

But if printers can be taught to spell "already" as one word and "all right" as two, why not artists?

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

OFF TO DADDY GANDER TOWN

"Aha!" cried Snitcher Snatch. "Now these people can't come after me."

Now a funny thing happened when Snitcher Snatch put a grain of magic snuff on everybody's nose.

Nancy sneezed and Nick sneezed and Mister Whizz sneezed and Mayor Snorelound sneezed and Forty Whisks sneezed and the policeman sneezed and everybody in Snoozertown sneezed, until all the houses rocked on their foundations.

And the aeroplane was lifted up into the air as though a cyclone had struck it—and carried far, far away.

"Aha!" cried Snitcher Snatch. "Now these people can't come after me."

"Now where do you suppose it is?" cried Mister Whizz. "I left it right here by this telegraph pole."

"This is a silly place," cried Mister Whizz. "We will all turn into Snoozers if we stay here. Some along, children."

So the Twins and the fairymen left Snoozertown and went to find their aeroplane.

But lo and behold, it was gone!

"Now where do you suppose it is?" cried Mister Whizz. "I left it right here by this telegraph pole."

"I know!" called an old crow. "A terrible gust of wind came from Ennoozertown and blew it away. It sounded like a hundred sneezes."

"That's exactly what it was!" exclaimed the Twins.

proposed new laws simply be submitted to the governor by those interested. "That's what happens in the end, anyway."

Of course. In practically every state in the Union, the governor is the government. For at least the whole of this century, the president has been the national government.

Whenever he did not succeed in governing, we were not governed. The increasing complexity of life made efficiency so much more important than anything else that we tacitly turned the whole government over to its only efficient branch, the Legislature.

Legislatures and Congress, our own direct representatives, the safeguards of our freedom, fell into increasing contempt for the one unpardonable sin of inefficiency.

The right remedy would have been to make them efficient. It can be done. The experience of the world has shown how.

But it was easier to take the department that was already efficient and make it the legislative as well as the executive branch. It works on the whole, surprisingly well. Until we can do the other thing, there is nothing to do but cling to it. But free government needs other things, as well as efficiency.

We must have the efficiency, even if its price is "going without the other things. Italy and Spain are exemplifying that in its extreme form.

America can best escape the risk of her fate by setting resolutely at naught the task of securing representative freedom and responsibility without sacrificing efficiency.

Another "unofficial" conference.

There will be a strictly unofficial Pacific conference or institute in Hawaii this summer, attended by strictly unofficial persons from all the nations around the Pacific, for the strictly unofficial discussion of the problems of the Pacific.

Unless there is danger of the suspicion that it doth protest too much, doubtless a reiteration of its strictly unofficial character will be a routine feature of the opening of each session.

But there will be a real value in this strictly unofficial basis of discussion.

This applies particularly to the most delicate questions of all—those affecting Japan and the "white" nations of the Pacific.

So far, only two sorts of expressions of Japanese opinion have been available.

One was the necessarily restrained and "correct" expression of officials. The other was the unrestrained, not to say reckless and irresponsible expressions of yellow journalists and demagogic politicians.

No one, of course, means anything. A gathering of representative and responsible persons, who carefully do not represent anything and are not responsible to anybody, can express conservatively and intelligently the real best opinion on both sides of these issues.

Such an expression, the more unofficial the better, will be invaluable in enlightening official understanding and negotiations later.

THURSDAY

The Last Supper

Read Lk. 22:1-23. Text: 22:19. This do in remembrance of me.

MEDITATION—In this last meeting with his disciples Jesus sought to bind the hearts of his intimate friends to himself and to God forever. He had learned through the years the way to God and had been strengthened again and again by the Holy Spirit. In this hour he gave his disciples an opportunity to share his communion with the father. As we join in this sacrament in memory of him his Spirit comes to our souls and we learn the true value of things. No one can partake of the communion in truth and retain a frivolous or flippant spirit.

"Always when my soul has surrendered itself to the Divine will I am refreshed. The laying down of self is the taking up of God. When I lose my will I gain the Infinite. The moment of surrender is also the moment of conquest. When I consecrate my weakness I put on strength and majesty like a robe."

PRAYER—Eternal God, may the presence of thy Spirit in our lives give us strength to do Thy will. May we have true communion with Thee and come to know Thee as our Father, infinite in love and tenderness. Let us be as faithful gardens bringing forth all manner of good fruit in the Spirit. A abide with us, in Christ's name. Amen.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

James Oliver Curwood

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

Copyright, 1917, by Doubleday, Page & Co.

"BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," a Vitaphone Picture, With Wolf, the War Dog, is an Adaptation of This Story

SYNOPSIS

What Bush McTaggart, the factor, intended, had come about. Baree, the dog, his old enemy, following the factor's trap lines, and stripping them of food, had walked straight into a "nest" that had been laid for him, and was a prisoner. McTaggart found him there and gloated over his misery. Baree snarled back but was helpless. And then came along a human stranger. "You poor devil," he said sympathetically, to Baree. "An outlaw? Well, they haven't played you a very square game!"

He rose and faced McTaggart. "I had to set a lot of traps like that," the factor apologized, his face reddening slightly under the steady gaze of the stranger's blue eyes. Suddenly his animus rose. "And he's going to die there, inch by inch. I'm going to let him starve, and rot in the traps, to pay for all he's done." He picked up his gun, and added, with his eyes on the stranger and his finger ready at the trigger, "I'm Bush McTaggart, the factor at Lac Bain. Are you bound that way, M'sieu?" "A few miles. I'm bound up-country—beyond the Barrens."

McTaggart felt again the strange thrill.

"Government?" he asked. The stranger nodded.

"The Police, perhaps?" persisted McTaggart.

"Why, yes—of course—the Police," said the stranger, looking straight into the factor's eyes. "And now, M'sieu, as a very great courtesy to the Law I'm going to ask you to send a bullet through that beast's head before we go on. Will you? Or shall I?"

"It's the law of the line," said McTaggart, "to let a trap robber rot in the traps. And that beast was a devil. Listen—"

Swiftly, and yet leaving out none of the fine detail, he told of the

"You poor devil," he said, the smile going out of his face. "You poor devil!"

weeks and months of strife between himself and Baree; of the maddening futility of all his tricks and schemes and the still more maddening cleverness of the beast he had at last succeeded in trapping.

"He was a devil—that clever," he cried fiercely when he had finished. "And now—would you shoot him, or let him lie there and die by inches, as the devil should?"

The stranger was looking at Baree. His face was turned away from McTaggart. He said:

"I guess you are right. Let the devil rot. If you're heading for Lac Bain, M'sieu, I'll travel a short distance with you now. It will take a couple of miles to straighten out the line of my compass."

He picked up his gun. McTaggart led the way. At the end of half an hour the stranger stooped, and pointed north.

"Straight up there—a good five hundred miles," he said, speaking lightly as though he would reach home that night. "I'll leave you here."

He made no offer to shake hands. But in going, he said,

"You might report that John Madison has passed this way."

After that he travelled straight northward for half a mile through the deep forest. Then he swung westward for two miles, turned at a sharp angle into the south, and an hour after he had left McTaggart he was once more squatted on his heels almost within arms' reach of Baree.

And he was saying, as though speaking to a human companion:

"So that's what you've been, old boy. A trap robber, eh? An outlaw? And you beat him at the game for two months! And for that, because you're a better beast than he is, he wants to let you die here as slow as you can. An outlaw!" His voice broke into a pleasant laugh, the sort of laugh that whirrs one, even a beast,

"That's funny. We ought to shake hands, Boy, by George, we had! You're a wild one, he says. Well so am I. Told him my name was John Madison. It ain't. I'm Jim Carvel. And, oh Lord—all I said was 'Police.' And that was right. It ain't a lie. I'm wanted by the whole corporation—by every danged policeman between Hudson's Bay and the Mackenzie River. Shake, old man. We're in the same boat, an' I'm glad to meet you!"

CHAPTER XXVIII

Jim Carvel held out his hand, and the snarl that was in Baree's throat died away. The man rose to his feet. He stood there, looking in the direction taken by Bush McTaggart, and chuckled in a curious, exultant sort of way. There was friendliness even in that chuckle. There was friendliness in his eyes and in the shine of his teeth as he looked again at Baree. About him there was something that seemed to make the gray day brighter, that seemed to warm the chill air—a strange something that radiated cheer and hope and comradeship just as a hot stove sends out the glow of heat. Baree felt it. For the first time since the two men had come his trap-torn body lost its tenseness; his back sagged; his teeth clicked as he shivered in his agony. To this man he betrayed his weakness. In his bloodshot eyes there was a hungering look as he watched Carvel—the self-confessed outlaw. And Jim Carvel again held out his hand—much nearer this time.

"You poor devil," he said, the smile going out of his face. "You poor devil!"

The words were like a caress to Baree—the first he had known since the loss of Nepeese and Pierrot. He dropped his head until his jaw lay flat in the snow. Carvel could see the blood dripping slowly from it.

"You poor devil!" he repeated.

There was no fear in the way he put forth his hand. It was the confidence of a great sincerity and a great compassion. It touched Baree's head and patted it in a brotherly fashion, and then—slowly and with a bit more caution—it went to the trap fastened to Baree's forepaw. In his half-crazed brain Baree was fighting to understand things, and the truth came finally when he felt the steel jaws of the trap open, and he drew forth his maimed foot. He did then what he had done to no other creature but Nepeese. Just once his hot tongue shot out and licked Carvel's hand. The man laughed. With his powerful hands he opened the other traps, and Baree was free.

For a few moments he lay without moving, his eyes fixed on the man. Carvel had seated himself on the snow-covered end of a birch log and was filling his pipe. Baree watched him light it; he noted with new interest the first purplish cloud of smoke that left Carvel's mouth. The man was not more than the length of two trap-chains away—and he grinned at Baree.

"Screw up your nerve, old chap," he encouraged. "No bones broke. Just a little stiff. Mobby we'd better—get out."

He turned his face in the direction of Lac Bain. The suspicion was in his mind that McTaggart might turn back. Perhaps that same suspicion was impressed upon Baree, for when Carvel looked at him again he was on his feet, staggering a bit as he gained his equilibrium. In another moment the outlaw had swung the pack-sack from his shoulders and was opening it. He thrust in his hand and drew out a chunk of raw, red meat.

"Killed it this morning," he explained to Baree. "Yearling bull, tender as partridge—and that's as fine a sweetbread as ever came out from under a backbone. Try it!"

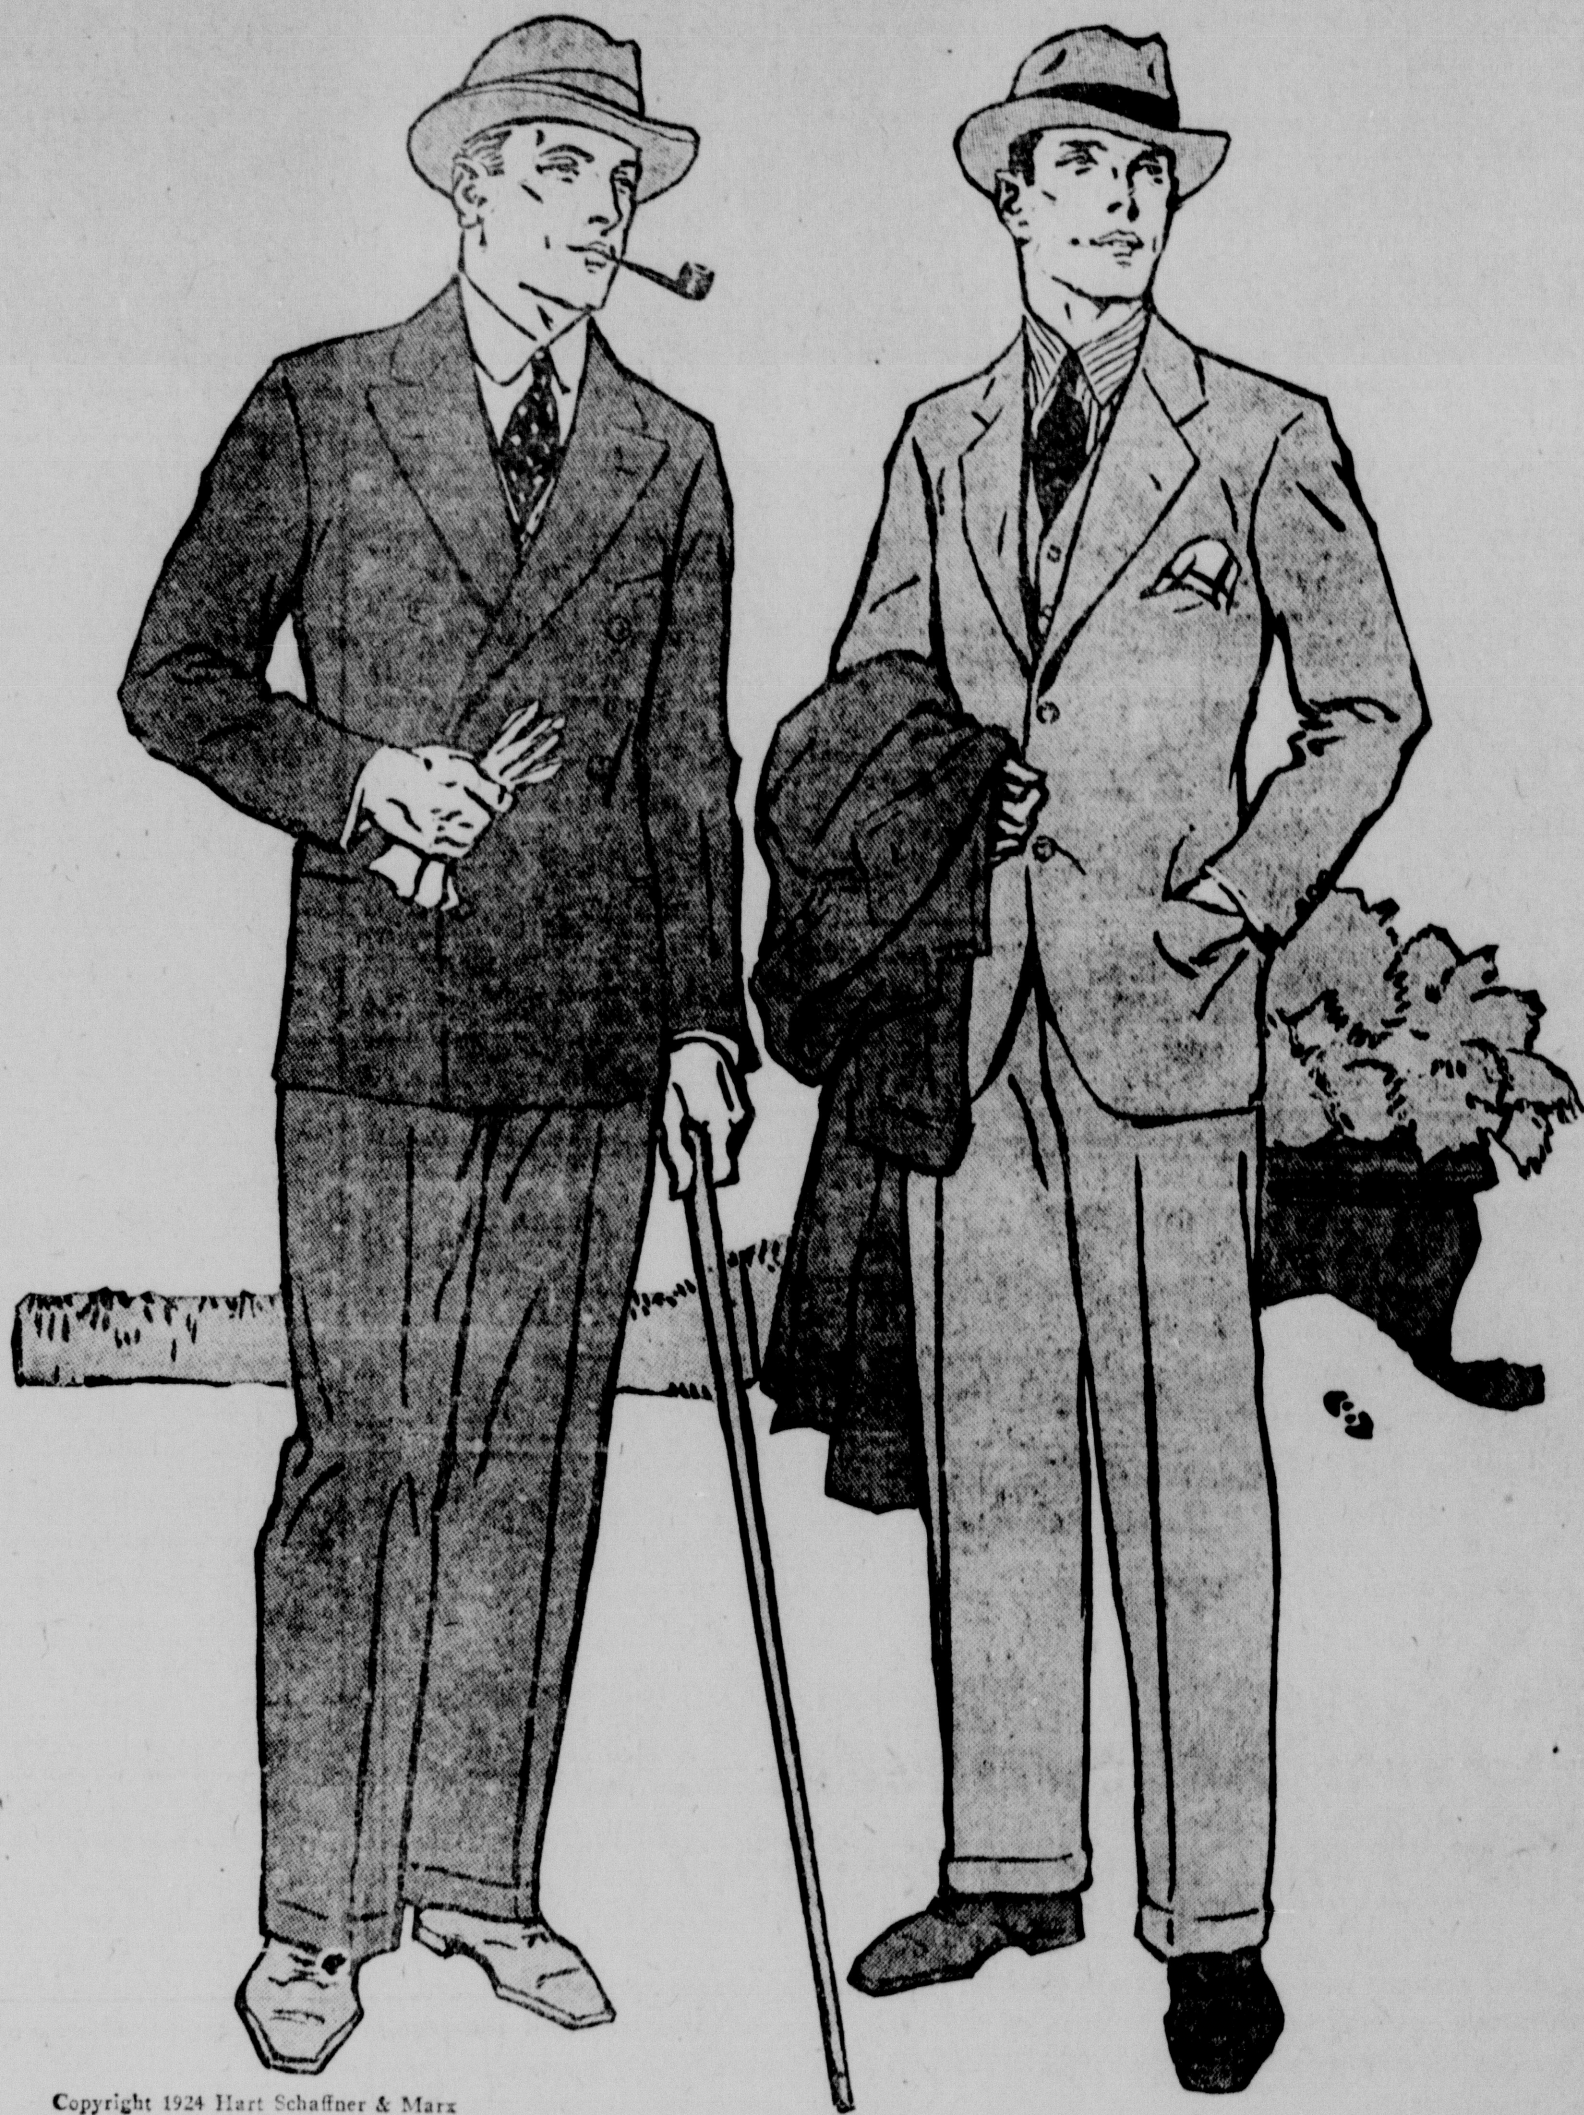

He tossed the flesh to Baree. There was no equivocation in the manner of its acceptance. Baree was famished—and the meat was sung to him by a friend. He buried his teeth in it. His jaws crunched it. New fire leaped into his blood as he feasted, but not for an instant did his reddened eyes leave the other's face. Carvel replaced his pack. He rose to his feet, took up his rifle, slipped on his snowshoes, and fronted the north.

"Come on, Boy," he said. "We've got to travel."

It was a matter-of-fact invitation, as though the two had been traveling companions for a long time. It was, perhaps, not only an invitation but partly a command. It puzzled Baree. For a full half-minute he stood motionless in his tracks gazing at Carvel as he strode into the north. A sudden convulsive twitching shot through Baree; he swung his head toward Lac Bain; he looked again at Carvel, and a white that was scarcely more than a breath came out of his throat. The man was just about to disappear into the thick spruce. He paused, and looked back.

"Coming, Boy?"

Refreshing Notes of Youthfulness

run through these coats with their trim hips and gay colorings, meeting every woman's yearning for more spirited fashions.

No tradition-bound designers conceived them—these were born of true artists daring to step out of the beaten path.

There's youth in the smooth cloths of the Kasha class and those of the twill family; in the more rugged PoLands, Polaires and Suedes; in the velvety napped novelties.

There's youth in the naive flares; in the deft trimmings; in the often pert silk linings—and there's nothing at all old fashioned about the prices which as frankly seem not grown-up.

At any price from

Clubs Are Trumps

Sportsmanship now-a-days differs agreeably from that of vanished days, when it was flayed as "detested sport that owes its pleasures to another's pain." Among the finest of all Anglo-Saxon terms is gentleman-sportsman, one who does not regard it as incompatible with a gentleman to be a sportsman, nor as inconsistent with a sportsman to act the gentleman. This does not merely apply to deportment, but to dress, as well. When golf was young, golf clothes were grass green in their immaturity. The golfer of twenty-five years ago waddled upon the links in a fearful and wonderful get-up that would send the present-day player into gales of laughter. Indeed, for many years the notion persisted that to dress smartly and becomingly for the Only and Olden Game was to proclaim yourself a novice, who couldn't tell a wrist-shot from a wrist-watch; nor divot from dividend; nor a gentleman was to look like a grass-cutter.

We have given this sort of thing the check and those who have helped to bury such delusions deep beneath the turf are the "crack" amateur and professional golfers. Where, for example, can you find men who are more smartly turned out upon the course than Bobby Jones or Walter Hagen, among the most illustrious exponents of that American skill which is rapidly out-Scotching the Scotch upon their native heath? Compare the turnout of these men with that even of George Duncan and Harry Vardon, great in their day, and you will grasp what forward strides golf has taken in the style and character of its clothes.

Not so long ago, the leaning of fashion was toward studiously simple golf suits devoid of belts, yokes, pleats, flaps and, indeed, everything that might be called "fussy." This was a natural reaction from the period when men were prone to overdress and when the golfer began to look overly dandified. Today, however, it is recognized that a golf coat must be different in cut from a lounge coat and that, moreover, it must look smartly sportsman-like.

Hence, the severely plain coat, though not out of fashion, is not as much in favor as the model which shows by its line that it is unmistakably designed for golf and not for town or business usage. Such a coat is illustrated here. It is the 3-button, peaked-lapel style with four flapped, buttoned patch pockets. The front is soft. The back is straight. There is no vent. The garment is one eighth-lined and about 80 inches long. A similar model has the pleated back with a half belt. Knickers may have the now familiar "plus-four" drape or this may be modified to plus two or three as best suits the golfer's figure.

The FLAPPER WIFE

CHAPTER I

It was the last night of Gloria's girlhood.Tomorrow would be her wedding day!She stood looking down at the white satin dress spread out on her bed.It had been worn by two other brides... her grandmother and later, her own mother."But I certainly don't intend to have the kind of life they had!"
Gloria shook her bobbed head at the white walls of her room.Her dead grandmother, whose work-worn hands had raised ten children!Ten children! Think of it...
Gloria shuddered."Not for me!" she said aloud, "Not if I know myself."Of course, Dick might want children. He probably would. Most men did want them. Why not, since they had none of the bother and pain of having them?They could go on living their lives while the wives lost sleep and freshness caring for the children.They could rush about, doing as they pleased. For their women were safe at home, chained to the cradle.No, she was not going to have babies! Not even one!
So that was that!Then Gloria's thoughts flew down stairs to the sitting room. She knew her mother was there in the old rocking, mending stockings. She was always mending. And still the basket was always full. It held an endless job.Poor Mother! How hard she worked!
There was nothing for her but housework and her family, year after year. Ye gods, what a life!A woman was either a slave or a doll.
But if she was a slave, it was her own fault. And that's all there was to it.Gloria had made up her mind that she was through with hard work, forever, last week when she had said goodby to her typewriter and her job in La Salle street.Gloria lifted the old wedding dress from the bed, and put it on.She knew that she was beautiful.
She had red-gold hair and dark eyes and lashes. Her skin was smooth and white as a gardenia. And the forces that had modeled her features had made them clear and fine.Behind this sweet and womanly mask, she was wildly discontented and eager for life. And life—with a capital L—was beginning tomorrow with her wedding day!Tomorrow she would burst forth like a butterfly from its cocoon, and fly away. Away from this shabby house, and the alarm clock that had wrenched her from sleep at seven every morning for the last two years. Away from the necessity of working six days a week as typist for a real estate firm on La Salle street.And mixed up with Gloria's love for Dick Gregory was an enormous gratitude toward him for taking her away from all this to a life of ease with him.At least, Gloria intended that it should be ease... and luxury.
Too. She was tired of penny-pinching and hard work. Dead tired.A job and a business career were all very well in their way for girls who weren't beautiful and desirable
... girls whom men didn't want.But with a face like hers...
Then she turned out the lights above the dressing table.She climbed into bed, pulled the covers around her shoulders, and sleepily kissed her mother good night."I know you did. Your idea of married life was to take care of your husband. Mine is that he is to take care of me!" Gloria shrieked. "Where you run a carpet sweeper I'm going

She tiptoed out into the hall.
Halfway down the stairs she

THIS was not the thing to do!
She was making herself cheap

Well, she would keep Dick running after her! She would never go to him as she was going now! Never!

She turned and ran back to her room.

"Dick!" she called softly from the window. He came out from the shadow of the porch.

"Darling, I'm not coming down," Gloria said. "I just can't. It wouldn't be right. You shouldn't have asked me to do such a horrid thing!"

Without answering, Dick crossed the lawn and started his car.

Gloria lay in bed listening to the sound of it. She heard it for a long time, and she knew that Dick had not gone home, but farther out on Wilson avenue, to take one last look at the house he had built for her.

What a boy he was!
At twenty, he was more worldly wise than Dick, in spite of his thirty years and his reputation as a lawyer.

He was like wax in her hands. She could make him utterly miserable by refusing him a kiss. And when she was tender he would willingly go through fire and water for her! He said so.

When she did kiss him, she was never thrilled by it. What excited her was the power that kiss gave her over him!

Yes, Dick was mad about her. He would give her anything she asked for. And she was not going to be slow in asking for the things she wanted... leisure, love and luxury. But above all, luxury!

Gloria's first thought the next morning was "This is my wedding day."

Her second was "This is the last morning I shall have to wake up in this dingy old room, thank goodness!"

She hated everything in it, from the battered brass bed to the imitation ivory toilet set.

By tomorrow morning she would be the wife of a man who could buy her wonderful things... a toilet set of silver, perfumes, lady handkerchiefs, chiffon stockings too thin ever to be mended!

She had made up her mind that her honeymoon would be a shopping trip, too. With Dick to pay the bills!

"Sweetheart," Dick had said, "let's honeymoon in some quiet place where we can be alone." But she had laughed him to scorn.

"Don't you know you can be lone-lier in a big city than anywhere else in the world, silly?" she had asked.
"I've decided on Montreal. It's romantic, but it's full of lovely shops and restaurants. And we shall stop at the Ritz... and be very smart and Ritzzy!"

Dick had laughed. And she had her way.

So when a certain train rolled across the country that November night, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gregory were on it. Their drawing room was packed with brides' roses.

"You're like a rose, yourself, my little Gloria! All mine at last!" Dick murmured. His arms held her close.
His eager lips pressed down hungrily upon hers that were so smooth and cool.

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND NEVER SUSPECT IT

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure to mention this paper.

CHI-NAMEL GRAINING AND PAINT DEMONSTRATION

A Hardwood Floor of any Color

Floors which are in poor condition to be improved with varnish alone can be made to imitate a genuine hardwood floor with this new patented Graining System.

This process does not require the services of a professional wood finisher.

The Graining Tool takes the place of skill and can be successfully used by the inexperienced man or woman, thus making it possible for any one at a very slight expense to enjoy the luxury of a new hardwood floor.

This Graining Compound when protected by one or two coats of Chi-Namel produces a surface that will outwear any ordinary varnished floor, many times over.

Thursday and Friday this week, a special demonstrator from the factory will be here to assist you in your painting and decorating problems.

Come in and consult him in regard to your Floors, Kitchen Walls, Dull Wall Enamels, House Paint, Barn Paint, in fact any and all styles or kinds of painting.

How about your Auto? Is it as good looking as it should be?
